

Dave Arneson's hand-drawn copy of Avalon Hill's "Outdoor Survival" game map. Likely used in his Blackmoor campaign around 1972.
© 2025 The Fellowship of the Thing, Ltd. • tfott.com

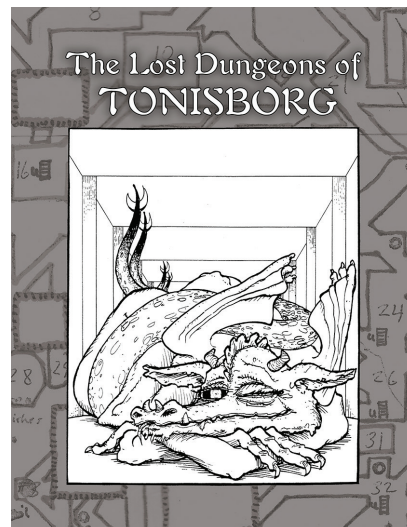

More from The Fellowship of the Thing, Ltd.

The Lost Dungeons of Tonisborg

A guide to how Dungeons & Dragons was played before there was Dungeons & Dragons!

Greg Svenson's The Lost Dungeons of Tonisborg.
The Most Unique RPG Module ever published.

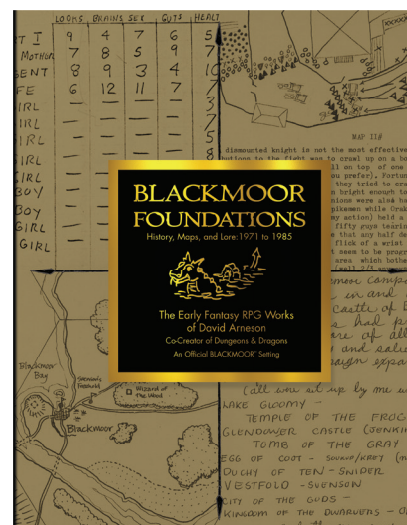

Thought to be lost forever, the maps and notes for this second oldest mega-dungeon, created in 1973, were miraculously rediscovered during the filming of Secrets of Blackmoor. Now, republished with updated maps and extensive background information, you and your friends can step into a world of adventure with this historic dungeon.

BLACKMOOR FOUNDATIONS

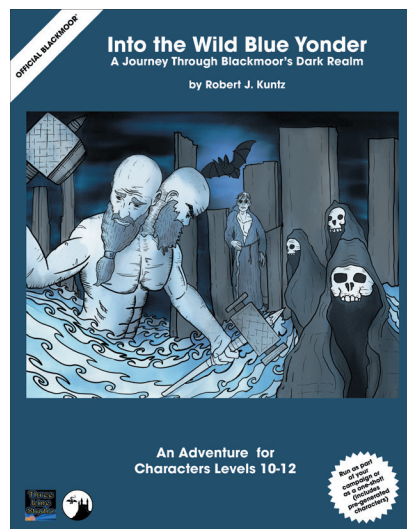

History, Maps, and Lore: 1971 to 1985
The Early Fantasy RPG Works of David Arneson

A comprehensive collection of historical documents, maps, and writings by Dave Arneson, co-creator of D&D, chronicling the beginning and evolution of his pioneering Blackmoor® campaign, the first fantasy role-playing game world. Spanning 1971 to 1985, this treasure trove of gaming history, with commentary by Griffith M. Morgan III, reveals how Arneson's innovative play methods and complex imaginary world laid the foundation for all role-playing games, offering both a fascinating glimpse into gaming's origins and a guide for creating your own Blackmoor® adventures, making it an essential addition to any historian's or gamer's library.

Into the Wild Blue Yonder: A Journey Through Blackmoor's Dark Realm

Written by Robert J. Kuntz, co-author of Greyhawk, as a tribute to Dave Arneson, this unique Blackmoor® adventure, designed for Advanced 1st Edition rules but adaptable to various fantasy RPGs, can be played as a single-session scenario using pre-generated characters or integrated into ongoing campaigns. Players must venture into a forbidden realm of darkness to recover primordial memories from Blackmoor's earliest explorers to prevent a war over the throne's ascendancy, celebrating Arneson's legacy and the origins of fantasy RPGs.

Movies, Merch, and More at www.TFOTT.com

BLACKMOOR® is a trademark of the Estate of David Arneson, LLC. Used under license.